B. & O. AND O. & A. RAILROADS.

The National Intelligencer of Tuesday contains an editorial severely reflecting on the management of the Orange and Alexandria Railroad, and charging that its operations are controlled by the Baltimore and Ohio road to such extent as to discriminate against the interests of the city of Alexandria and the citizens of Virginia. Knowing that the Intelligencer, with several of our Virginia journals, has for some time been afflicted with "Garrett on the Brain," we were at first disposed to attribute the article in question to the hallucination incident to that affection. The Intelligencer, however, mentions certain alleged facts, which, and which, if really true, certainly demand the attention of those most interested. We have never shared the suspicious jealousy of the Baltimore and Ohio road, which seem to actuate some of our contemporaries, but have endeavored impartially to discriminate between the excessive laudations which the management of that corporation have elicited on the one hand, and the unfriendly strictures, and injurious suspicions, with which it is regarded on the other.

The Intelligencer charges that the interests of Alexandria are seriously injured by the inadequacy of freight transportation on the Orange and Alexandria road, and this deficiency is caused by the withdrawal of the cars of the Baltimore and Ohio road, heretofore used on the Orange and Alexandria line. From these data the Intelligencer assumes "that this has been done to prevent Alexandria from doing a business with the interior of Virginia, which might, by a hocus pocus arrangement in regard to freights, be forced to Baltimore, so that the freight would be compelled to come over the whole length of the Washington branch of the Baltimore and Ohio Road."

We confess that the reasoning here is rather obscure. We cannot perceive how the lessening of the freight transportation over the Orange and Alexandria Road, can by any hocus pocus force freights to Baltimore which would otherwise stop at Alexandria. A subsequent statement, however, if true would indicate that the Orange road was being used to the injury, rather than the advantage of Alexandria. We quote again from the Intelligencer's article:

"There is, however, one prominent fact that may afford a key to all this difficulty. Merchants at Staunton, Va., on the line of this road, [a mistake, Staunton is on the Central road—News;] write that although certain staple articles of consumption can be purchased in Alexandria at a much lower price than in Baltimore, yet they can buy in Baltimore and have them delivered in Staunton, cheaper than to buy in Alexandria."

If this be true, there is manifestly something wrong, which demands investigation and remedy. We have always opposed earnestly these discriminations against local trade, as well as against the interests of Virginia cities. We have never ceased to combat this feature of Railroad management, wherever brought to our notice. It is by such shortsighted policy that the Internal Improvements of Virginia have so signally failed to develop her agricultural, mineral, and manufacturing interests. The system of carrying through freights at a rate so low as to enable many cases, a positive loss on the Company, trusting to making up this loss by onerous rates on local freights, has wrought more injury to Virginia interests and more retarded her prosperity than any other one thing. We hope yet to see wiser counsels prevail. We do not despair witnessing the advent of a different policy in the management of all our internal improvements, under the influence of which Virginia may become, what she ought to be, the first State in the Union in point of wealth, influence and productions.

We hope and believe that the President and Directors of the Orange and Alexandria road will be enabled to vindicate their management from the strictures of the Intelligencer, in every particular. We know that they can do so with regard to some of the acts complained of. If the Baltimore and Ohio road have secured by purchase of stocks such an influence as will enable them to control the management of the Orange and Alexandria road, we suppose that it is all legitimate, and no one has the right to complain. We leave this question, however, to the consideration of the stockholders themselves.—Lynchburg News.

THE TROUSSEAU of a lady about to figure as bride at a grand wedding in Farmington, Connecticut, is on exhibition at New York. The wedding dress consists of the heaviest white satin, made with high corsage, gored skirt, and coat sleeve trimmed with fine point lace; lace veil to match. One of the reception dresses is made of emerald colored moire antique, with a berthe of satin, same color, trimmed with black Chantilly lace. Another robe is of lavender colored silk, trimmed with white point lace, headed with white satin. A breakfast jacket is made of scarlet cloth, elaborately embroidered with black silk braid, and profusely studded with jet beads. The bride's travelling dress consists of brown Irish poplin, trimmed with cross-bands of brown silk, about one inch wide; tight-fitting saque, the seams of which are corded with brown satin.

In consequence of alleged "bad management" of the affairs of the Antietam Cemetery, Gov. Fenton, of New York, refuses to pay over the entire appropriation made by the Legislature of that State until a special commission shall have presented a satisfactory report upon the past and present management. The Governor of Pennsylvania has also appointed a special commission for a like purpose.

The Revenue officers in Philadelphia yesterday attempted to seize several illicit whiskey distilleries located in Port Richmond, a suburb of the city, chiefly inhabited by laborers in the coal yards. They were set upon by the disorderly populace, several of them badly injured, and the stills, &c., taken from their custody.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.
Without making a useless harangue, I will say to my friends and the public that I am now prepared to supply all their wants in the way of STOVES. At a time lost to undertake to look for anything better than can be found in my store. I have something new in the way of HEATING STOVES, which cannot be surpassed in style, or beauty of design. To one and all I will say that whatever I sell I warrant to answer the purpose I sold it for. I therefore invite my country friends to call and examine
my stock of COOKING and HEATING
STOVES before purchasing elsewhere, confident that they will not go away displeased. I will also enumerate amongst my stock a fine
lot of TIN WARE, of my own manufacture, and made by very experienced workmen; also,
TINNED SAFES, PRESERVING KET-TLES, Fruit Cans, Fine Japanned and Plan-ished Ware and Chamber Sets, to which I would call the attention of the public. Coffee
